HIGH SCHOOL WINS FROM PALATINE

Capt. Haley Stars as Antioch
Defeats Heavy Palatine Team

KENOSHA NEXT SATURDAY

Saturday's foot ball game between Antioch high school and Palatine was the best game here so far this season Antioch winning 20-0. Pitted against what appeared to be a far heavier team, Antioch showed their best and were able to pile up three touchdowns. Antioch's ability to break through the line and atop the Palatine backs before they could get started was one of the features of the game. Palatine tried several forward passes, two of which were successful, but fortunately the Antioch boys were following the ball pretty closely and succeeded in downing their man before he got very far.

The first quarter was a nip and tuck affair with odds slightly in favor of the Palatine team until near the close of the quarter, when Haley got through with one of his line plunges for forty yards and a touchdown. This play has proved a wonderful ground gainer for Antioch. The second period brought another touchdown, Haley again going through the center of the line for a long run, bringing the ball within a short distance of the Palatine goal, from where the Antioch boys put it over in short order.

The third touchdown came in the third period when Haley again brought his line plunge into play twisting and dodging his way through the Palatine team for a fifty-five yard run and a touchdown. The Antioch boys were very weak in their forward passes, the receivers being unable to shake the Palatine secondary defense.

Chinn was injured the early part of the game, as low on the head putting him out of commission for a while, and it showed up for the rest of the game, he not playing the slashing game that he has played thus far this season. Chinn's inability to show up well seemed to take all the pep out of the shift formation that has brought such good results up to Saturday's game. Gray and Keulman at the other half made a few gains, but on the whole were not successful, as time and again the Palatine boys got through and stopped them before they were well under way.

On a whole the Antioch boys played a slashing game and clearly outclassed their opponents in every department, and it is much to be regretted if they do not get another crack at the Waukegan crowd, for if they do meet there would be a different story to tell.

Kenosha will be the next opponents the game to be played next Saturday at Antioch and it is the hope of the management that the town folks will turn out stronger than they have been to give the boys support. A few more live ones on the cheering line like Miss Frances Proffitt would go a whole long way to cheer the boys to victory in their remaining games.

Three Castle Knoll Cows
Sell for $1,800

Mrs. Kate Miller, owner of Castle Knoll farm, near Burlington, sent three of her pure bred Holstein-Friesian cattle, all daughters of the $16,000 herd sire, King Korndyke Skylark Canary, to the National Dairy show sale at St. Paul, October 14 and the three cows were purchased as foundation stock for the Washburn farm owned by the head of the Washburn-Crosby Milling Co., for a total of $1,800. One of them, a three-year-old heifer, topped all sales in her class, bringing $725.

Mrs. Miller had ten head in the Lake county consignment sale at Libertyville last week. Other local breeders in this sale were W. I. Martin and the Hawthorne Farms Co.

Lay Plans for New Roadway for Antioch

The plans for a new street to be put through from Johnson street to Depot street, about 300 feet east of the Main street, are making rapid progress, most of the citizens of the village owning property in this strip have offered to donate the part of their land involved. The present plans are for a 48-foot street. This street will prove a wonderful improvement to the town and will relieve traffic on the Main street.

Farmers May Patent Names of Their Farms

Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture has sent out a notice that he hopes will come to the attention of all farmers proud of their farm development. He wants them to know that they can patent the names of their farms and so establish a patented standard of quality for their produce.

The United States patent office recently approved and published in the Patent Office Gazette a trademark covering "Hawkeye" the name of an Iowa farm owned by Leda C. Willis, breeder of pure bred hogs, cattle and sheep. He is the first stockman and probably the first farmer, Secretary Wallace says, to obtain a United States trademark for his farm. If a farmer uses his farm name and trademark as part of his selling operations the trademark protects the owner of the farm in interstate commerce. Several states have laws which authorize the registration of farm names with the state authorities, but a trademark registered by the government protects the use of the farm name outside of the state in which the farm is located.—Clark County Journal.

Marketing Co. Gives Financial Statement

In this issue of the News will be found a preliminary report on the financial statement as compiled by the auditing firms of Ernst & Ernst appears this week. This statement gives a much brighter outlook in the financial affairs of the Marketing company than was anticipated by the members of the board of directors.

There does not appear to be any material change in the affairs of the company. The field men are all busy in their line of work and report progress and the directors are marking time until the next annual meeting as there does not seem to be much chance to get together before that time with a legal meeting.

The one bright outstanding feature of the affairs of the dairy men is the manner in which the farmers are sticking to their different loyals. The present opinion of the older members of the association is that if the men stick to their loyals there is every possibility of pulling through the present crisis and getting the dairy business to where it is possible for the farmers to get what is coming to him.

The action of the Marketing company in marking the price of milk down to $1.50 has brought about a precedent that will be very hard to overcome but with close cooperation and a solid front on the part of the farmers through their association they will no doubt be able to get milk up to a profitable price.

Start Work of Suveying State Road

There has been considerable progress made on the road situated this week. Surveyors were busy on Saturday and Monday taking street levels and these surveys will no doubt be turned over to the village soon for action.

Much expression of elation has been shown by business men of the village at the progress being made and hope is given that the board will not meet opposition from property owners in complying with the specifications as laid down by the state highway for the line to be established through the village.

This line will bring about a possible sacrifice of present fronts on the part of some business houses and it is hoped that those who are to be affected will see the necessity of these changes and will give the board their best cooperation for the clearing of the way for the road, which all signs now point to a quick completion early in the spring.

SHOT WHILE HUNTING AT FOX LAKE

John L. Johnson Dead; George Niggemeyer Held on Murder Charge

THE FIGHT IS OVER A DUCK

John L. Johnson, 4507 North Robey street, member of the hardware specialty firm of Ackerman-Johnson company, 625 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, was shot to death Saturday noon, at Fox Lake after an argument over the possession of a duck with George Niggemeyer, owner of a boat livery on Fox Lake.

The two men were out in the lake in rowboats, several hundred feet apart, shooting at the mallards and teal. When they both fired at a duck and it dropped to the water both men claimed it. There was a heated argument.

Johnson, according to Charles Holmes, who was hunting from a boat 100 feet away, started to row away. Immediately after Johnson was shot in the back of the head. He died almost instantly.

Charley Holmes, witnessing the tragedy, hastened to bring Johnson, lying in the bottom of his boat, to shore, after other hunters left the scene, refusing to give aid. Dr. H. F. Beebe, of Antioch, was summoned, but the man was dead.

The body of Johnson was removed to Strang's undertaking rooms where the coroner's inquest was held. The jury consisted of O. Mathews, A. Delgaard, Gelstrup, Wm. Ross, Sam Tarbell and C. Blunt.

Following the shooting Niggemeyer rowed to shore and nearing his pier he shot at a mudhen and missed it, according to "Nigger John," who had started out to meet Niggemeyer on a business deal. Niggemeyer said to "Nigger John," "Did I get him?" "No," said "Nigger John," "but I'll get him." "Nigger John" then followed Niggemeyer to shore, and noticed he was neither nervous nor in a hurry and asked Niggemeyer "Will you be back soon?" "Yes," he replied. "Nigger John" then went to the store and upon returning was informed that Niggemeyer had shot a man.

Niggemeyer was placed under arrest in the office of Dr. V. I. Englert, 3166 Lincoln street, Chicago, Sunday morning on a charge of murder, and is being held in the Lake county jail at Waukegan without bail.

Niggemeyer, after being taken to the Waukegan police station by Assistant Chief of Police Thomas Tyrrell, stated that he was standing in the boat when he felt a stinging pain in his left eye and that in raising his hand instinctively to his head his shotgun was accidentally discharged. He said he didn't know whether it went off once or twice, the gun being an automatic. "I started for the shore and didn't know Johnson had been shot," Niggemeyer said.

According to information obtained by Chief Tyrrell, Niggemeyer went home and Dr. W. W. Warriner dressed his eye. Niggemeyer and his wife then went to Area and later to the home of his sister, Mrs. O. E. Gibson, 201 Fifteenth street, Wilmette.

At Wilmette Dr. Frederick O. Bowe operated on Niggemeyer's eye. According to a statement attributed to Dr. Bowe he made an X-ray examination and found no trace of shot in the eye. Dr. Bowe advised Niggemeyer to go to Dr. Englert for a further examination and treatment. Sheriff Elmer Green had received a tip that Niggemeyer was at Wilmette and notified the police there as well as Chief of Detectives Hughes in Chicago. The home of Mrs. Gibson was placed under surveillance. Niggemeyer was taken to Chicago, where Sheriff Green learned he would go to Dr. Englert's office. Chief Tyrrell and policeman Harold Cunningham and Thos. Holland rushed to Chicago in an automobile, making the trip in an hour and nineteen minutes, finding Nig-

JOY BROUGHT INTO HOME

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Restoring Mrs. Benz to Health

Altoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We have had six children die almost at birth. From one hour to nine days in all they have lived. As I was going to have another, I took a dozen bottles of your Compound and I can say that it is the greatest of all medicines on earth, for this baby is old and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says, 'That is some healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show this letter."—Mrs. C. W. Benz, 181 3rd Ave., Altoona, Pa.

No woman can realize the joy and happiness this healthy baby brought into the home of Mrs. Benz, unless they have had a like experience.

Every woman who suffers from any ailments peculiar to her sex, as indicated by backaches, headaches, bearing-down pains, irregularities, nervousness and "the blues" should not rest until they have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

Embarrassing Moment.

I had just received a letter from my beau. I read it over and at the end he had written: "P. S.—Isle of View." I read that phrase over three or four times but could get no sense out of it, so finally I took it into the living room where my folks were all sitting and said: "Mother, what does Zarry mean by this?" And I read the phrase out loud. Imagine my embarrassment when the meaning suddenly flashed over me as I read the words aloud. I made a hasty retreat.—Chicago American.

HOW PURCHASING POWER OF DOLLAR HAS FALLEN OFF

Addition to National and Individual Incomes of Little Real Benefit.

STATEMENT BY BUREAU OF ECONOMIC RESEARCH.

Most of Amount Due to Rise in Prices—Actual Total of Commodities Produced Increased Little, if at All, and Few Were Benefited.

New York, Oct. 27.—The total national income of the United States in 1918 was $11 billion dollars, as compared with $4.4 billion in 1913; but this increase in dollars did not represent a like increase in production. Most of it was due to the rise in prices, for the dollar of 1918 and 1919 was a much less efficient dollar than that of 1913. The actual total of commodities produced increased very little, if at all, and a large part of those which were produced were war materials, not of a kind really benefiting consumers.

Consequently, individual incomes, estimated on a per capita basis, rising from $340 in 1910 and $354 in 1913, to $580 in 1918, represent more dollars but little or no real increase, because the $580 of 1918 is equivalent to only $372 in terms of the purchasing power of 1913.

These are the most important findings of the National Bureau of Economic Research, made public today in advance of the formal publication of the results of a year's study of "Income in the United States." This study, the most exhaustive ever made of the income question in this country, has been conducted by Wesley Clair Mitchell, Willford I. King, Frederick R. Macaulay and Oswald W. Knuth, under the auspices and direction of a board of nineteen directors, including men prominent in many fields of business, education, labor, agriculture, economics and practical statistics, and representing many divergent points of view.

This table exhibits the main findings, including the equivalent value of per capita income in terms of the 1913 purchasing power:

Year	Total Nat'l Income (Billions)	Per Capita Income (Dollars)	Per Capita Income in 1913 Dollars
1909	$2.8	$19	$19
1910	3.4	340	340
1911	3.1	333	333
1912	3.0	345	345
1913	3.4	354	354
1914	3.2	358	350
1915	3.0	366	366
1916	4.4	446	400
1917	6.9	623	566
1918	11.0	686	580

Distribution of Income.

The report says that only one out of a hundred (1 per cent) income receivers in the United States in 1918 had incomes of $8,000 or more, and that this one per cent had 14 per cent of the national income. Five per cent, representing incomes above $3,200, had 26 per cent of the total. Ten per cent, including income above $2,300, had nearly 35 per cent of the total; the most prosperous 20 per cent, including income above $1,750, had about 47 per cent. Eighty per cent of the income receivers had incomes below $1,750, receiving about 53 per cent of the total income.

Shares of Labor and Capital.

In most of the years since 1912, the bureau finds that in the principal organized industries, wages and salaries were about 70 per cent of the total income; while capital (including management) received about 30 per cent, out of which were paid rent, interest and profits; but these proportions varied materially with relative prosperity and depression. In 1910, for example, the share of capital increased to about 35 per cent, with 65 per cent to labor, while in 1918 capital's share fell to about 22 per cent, while labor got about 78. Of the total payments to employees in the highly organized industries, about 92 per cent goes to the manual workers and clerical staffs, while 8 per cent goes to officials.

Share of the Farmer.

The farmers, who during the past decade have made up about 10 per cent of the total of gainfully employed, had from 12 to 13 per cent of the national income in the years between 1910 and 1918 inclusive; since 1917 they have been receiving 10 to 17 per cent, or a somewhat higher proportion, as the following figures from the report show:

Year	Per Cent
1910	12.9
1911	11.9
1912	12.3
1913	12.5
1914	12.5
1915	13.1
1916	12.8
1917	16.3
1918	17.0
1919	16.5

Sources of Production.

As for the sources of national income, the bureau finds, taking a general average since 1910, that agriculture contributes about 17 per cent of the total, manufacturing about 30 per cent, transportation about 9 per cent, government about 5 per cent, mining a little more than 3 per cent, banking a little over 1 per cent. The many miscellaneous employments, professional men, retailers, jobbers, mechanics, domestics, etc., too numerous to list specifically, contribute 33 per cent. In other words, our highly organized industries, even if we include all manufacturing, mining, transportation, banking, and government activities such as education and road-building, produce only about half of the national income. The rest is due to the efforts of small independent workers.

Income Tax Discrepancies.

The report estimates that the number of persons in 1918 having incomes over $2,000, was 5,300,000, and that their total income was over 23 billion dollars. Income tax returns, however, showed only 2,008,000 persons having over $2,000, and their total reported income was less than 14 billion dollars. This discrepancy is due in part to technical evasions and straight legal withholdings, but also in part to the existence of tax-exempt income. What this means in terms of the income tax is that the government received in 1918 about half a billion dollars less than it would have, if all persons receiving $2,000 had paid their full amount.

Contribution of Housewives.

The contribution of the 20,000,000 American housewives is not included by the bureau in the national income because they are not paid in money. But the report points out that if they were paid at the lowest possible figure (the average recompense of personal and domestic service) their addition to the total national income would be about one-third, or 13 billion. On that basis, the bureau gives the following conjectural figure as to the contribution of the housewife's contribution to the national income since 1909:

Year	Individual Contribution (in Dollars)	Total Contribution (in Billions)
1909	$60	$3.5
1910	60	3.0
1911	60	2.3
1912	65	2.5
1913	65	2.9
1914	65	3.0
1915	65	3.0
1916	65	3.0
1917	65	3.0
1918	65	3.0
1919	65	3.0

Income in Other Countries.

Both the total national income and the per capita income are larger in the United States than in any other country. The report estimates this as the relative standing of the four countries named at the outbreak of the war:

Year	Nat'l Income (Billions of Dollars)	Per Capita Income (in Dollars)
1914
United States	$38.5	$243
United Kingdom	16.8	146
Germany	10.5	146
Austria	1.3	253

The report is in press, and will be published early in November.

How the Bureau is Constituted.

The National Bureau of Economic Research was organized after the war by a group of persons who had come to realize the need for accurate and scientific collection of statistical information as a basis for intelligent solution of national problems. The directors of the bureau are: T. S. Adams, advisor to the Treasury department; John R. Commons, of the University of Wisconsin; John P. Frey, editor of the International Molders' Journal; Edwin F. Gay, president of the New York Evening Post; Harry W. Laidler, secretary of the Intercollegiate Socialist society; Elwood Mead, professor of rural institutions, University of California; Wesley Clair Mitchell, New School for Social Research; J. E. Sterrett, of the firm of Price, Waterhouse and company, accountants; N. I. Stone, labor manager, Hickey-Freeman company; Allyn A. Young, professor of economics, Harvard university; also, the following appointed by the organizations named: P. P. Fish, of the National Industrial Conference board; Hugh Frayne, American Federation of Labor; David Friday, American Economic association; W. R. Ingalls, Engineering council; J. M. Larkin, Industrial Relations Association of America; George E. Roberts, American Bankers' association; Malcolm C. Rorty, American Statistical association; A. W. Shaw, Periodical Publishers' association; and Gray Silver, American Federation of Farm Bureau.

It is a rule of the bureau that each director must approve the findings of the research staff, or state his specific objections as part of the report. In this way, bias is eliminated, for methods and results are under constant supervision from men whose points of view are dissimilar.

William Press, Congress President, Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands.—Walter Williams, University of Missouri School of Journalism was re-elected president of the Press Congress of the World by acclamation. The congress passed a resolution petitioning President Harding to admit representatives of the press to the disarmament conference deliberations.

BEER AND WINE PERMITS ISSUED

Secretary Mellon's Order Allows Sale as Medicine by Druggists.

DECLARES IT IS THE LAW

Issues Regulations When Congress Fails to Act—Two and Half Gallons Beer and Two Quarts of Wine Permitted.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Regulations covering the use of beer and wine for medicinal purposes will be issued immediately by the treasury, Secretary Mellon announced. He has instructed prohibition state directors that it is lawful for druggists to sell beer.

The regulations are drawn in accordance with the law as interpreted by former Attorney General Palmer, and permit the manufacture and prescription of beer and wine for the sick. The regulations make a case of beer the unit for prescription of that beverage.

"The issuance of the beer regulations was delayed originally," Mr. Mellon said, "because it seemed probable that legislation would be enacted whereby the action of the department would be of no practical advantage to those interested; and this view appeared to be neglected in by them, since there was at that time no urgent demand for the issuance of the regulations."

"However, for some time past, it has been strongly urged by those interested that this department had no right longer to withhold the regulations, and that in so doing the department is denying to those interested their clear legal right and thereby imposing serious loss upon them."

"The legal rights of the parties concerned being plain, the department is unable longer to delay the issuance of these regulations."

SPANISH TAKE MOUNT ARRUIT

Occupation of the Important Position Took Place Monday Morning, Madrid Reports.

Madrid, Oct. 20.—An important success by the Spanish troops in Morocco—the occupation of Mount Arruit—was announced in an official communique. The occupation took place Monday morning, the statement said.

Mount Arruit was one of the important outlying positions in the Mellilla area captured by the rebellious tribesmen during the July disaster to the Spanish arms. The forces of General Narvarro held out at Mount Arruit for a time after the original attack, but finally were overwhelmed by the Moors and General Narvarro was taken prisoner and held as a hostage.

CHARLES AND ZITA CAPTURED

Army of Ex-Empress Defeated, and He and Former Empress Are Interned.

Budapest, Oct. 20.—The second attempt of former King Karl to regain the Hungarian throne within eight months has collapsed with his capture and internment.

The troops of Admiral Horthy, the Hungarian regent, outnumbering the forces accompanying the emperor in his second coup, forced them back in their attempt to enter Budapest, the ancient capital of the Hapsburgs.

Following advice from the allies that Karl would not be tolerated in Hungary, the Budapest government issued a warrant for his arrest, and with the former Empress Zita, he was captured and interned.

Gerry Bill Defeated.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The senate defeated, 40 to 28, an amendment to the tax revision bill proposing to reduce the normal income tax to 2 per cent on the first $5,000 of income, 4 per cent on the second $5,000.

Turns Down Townley Appeal.

MOTHER! MOVE

CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Harry, mother! Even a sick child loves the 'fruity' taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Stomach Trouble?

Health is Most Important to You and Your Family.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—"When my first baby was about a year old, he had a stomach disorder while teething. He was a very sick baby when one of my neighbors told me to give him a few drops of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery every two or three hours. Up to the time I gave him the Medical Discovery he had been unable to retain his food. The Discovery brought him out of this condition without further doctoring and he has had no stomach trouble since. He is at the present time a strong, hardy youngster, seven years old."—Mrs. Linda Burdette, 1010 N. Rose St.

Health is your most valuable asset. It does not pay to neglect it. Go at once to your neighborhood drug store and get the "Golden Medical Discovery" in tablets or liquid. Write Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice.

WHEN WEARY WILLIE SCORED

Uncle Isaac Was Just a Little Bit Too Emphatic in His Verdict Concerning Coat.

Weary Willie slouched into the pawnshop.

"How much will you give me for this overcoat?" he asked, producing a faded but neatly mended garment.

Isaac looked at it critically.

"Four dollars," he said.

"Why," cried Weary Willie, "that coat's worth $10 if it's worth a penny!"

"I wouldn't give you $10 for two like that," smiled Isaac. "Four dollars or nothing."

"Are you sure that's all it's worth?" asked Willie.

"Four dollars," repeated Isaac.

"Well, here's your $4," said Weary Willie. "This overcoat was hangin' outside yer shop, and I was wonderin' how much it was really worth."

Concerning Hiccups.

Gen. Coleman Du Pont, Delaware's new senator, was lunching in the senate restaurant.

"This magazine here," he said, laying a periodical aside, "contains a long article on the best way to stop hiccups. Now, it seems to me—"

And General Du Pont chuckled.

"It seems to me," he added, "that a good many readers would rather know the best way to start them."

Island Reclaimed by Ocean.

Off the northwest coast of Australia there used to be a beautiful island 13 miles long. But it gradually sank until it disappeared entirely, and at the latest reports of soundings, it was found to be 50 feet below the surface of the water.

You remember the story of the Pitcher—

It made a good many trips to the well and it came back in good order.

"I can take care of myself," it said—"they don't need to talk about risks to me."

But it went once too often.

After that it was only part of a pitcher, and they didn't need to talk to it about risks—it knew.

A lot of people won't believe coffee can harm them until it does harm them.

"Nonsense!" they say, "it never disturbs me."

When it does disturb them, then they know.

Often the disturbance which they then recognize is the result of irritations to nerves and digestion which have been going on for a long time.

If you have to lie awake at night and count the clock ticks, after an evening cup of coffee, then you know that it's better to be safe than sorry.

The risk of coffee's harm is gone when the meal-time drink is Postum.

Here's a delightful and satisfying table beverage, with charm for the taste and without harm for nerves or digestion. You know you're on the right road with Postum; there's never the possibility that you'll go once too often.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in cans) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water; Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

What Frost does to a Concrete Road

(National Crop Improvement Service.)

In building a concrete road, there should be no compromise. We have learned to our sorrow that those communities which have constructed a one-track, thin slab of concrete have been sadly disappointed and it is difficult to get enthusiasm in that neighborhood for more concrete roads.

When we build let us build the best we know how. Let us insure that our gravel roads will be so graded and drained that the water may never stand upon the surface.

A cement road can best be laid over a good gravel road which has had its bed pounded down for years. There is no farm of road so economical, and it is practically good for all time, if the foundation is good and the concrete mixture is right.

Steel has an affinity for concrete, the two practically expanding and contracting equally. The greatest combination for permanence is concrete and steel. This is proven to every one's satisfaction in building a concrete tower or bridge. They are invariably reinforced with steel.

For the same reason a concrete highway must be re-enforced. If a road cracks and splits for lack of re-enforcing, it becomes very costly to keep it in repair. It is a clumsy expedient at best to pour those cracks full of soft asphalt. These cracks will constantly widen unless re-enforced and the roads soon break up into chuck holes.

"Probably the most satisfactory method in point of efficiency yet devised for reducing the number of objectionable cracks in concrete pavements, is that of employing steel reinforcement," says the office of public roads in Bulletin No. 240, United States Department of Agriculture.

A steel fabric will strengthen a cement road the same as a wire netting will re-enforce wire glass against breakage by fire or other causes.

It is said that the additional expense of steel reinforcement should not be more than 5 per cent. We cannot afford to go to the great expense of building a concrete road and omitting this very important detail.

Let us do it right in the first place because it will be difficult to sell bonds to maintain or reconstruct that road if it goes to pieces.

Montgomery's Ostrich Tree. Montgomery, Cal., is as proud of its ostrich tree as residents of the lower Hudson valley are of Anthony's nose.

This celebrated curiosity is formed of two coast cypresses, so that their foliage seems to be that of one tree; and the shape of it, together with the peculiar angle at which the two trunks are placed, gives the silhouette of a huge and earnest ostrich stalking along shore. The brave old trees that make the picture are alone on a barren tongue of bench running out into the breakwaters of the Pacific.

SHOT WHILE HUNTING AT FOX LAKE

meyer at Dr. Engler's office in charge of Chicago officers.

Niggemeyer told the officers he had telephoned his father, George B. Niggemeyer, who conducts a boat livery at Fox Lake, and, who formerly was detective sergeant at the central station, Chicago, for many years, that he had learned the officers were on his trail and would give himself up after he got his eye treated and would come to Waukegan to place himself in the custody of the sheriff.

"I've been hunting for 15 years, and believe me, I'm cured," he said. Niggemeyer challenged the statement of Holmes, who he said, is a competitor in the boat livery business at Fox Lake.

Mrs. Niggemeyer accompanied her husband to Waukegan. She went to the county jail and went to the corridor where she saw the sheriff open the cell door through which Niggemeyer passed without hesitancy. A moment later the bolts clicked into place.

"Who will dress my eye?" Niggemeyer asked.

"We'll get a doctor to look after you," Sheriff Green replied.

Mrs. Niggemeyer braved the ordeal of seeing her husband incarcerated without visible emotion, but when she walked away from the jail across the courthouse lawn, she wept.

"Did your husband say anything about the shooting or an argument?" a reporter asked.

"There was no argument; he is innocent," was all that she would say about the tragedy.

The body of Johnson, who was a 32nd degree Mason, was taken to Chicago following the inquest, which was continued until next Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, as there are several other witnesses to be examined.

POULTRY

PHASES OF POULTRY RAISING

Poultryman Can Save Himself Time and Money by Applying to Government for Information.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Poultry raisers, whether engaging in the business on a large scale or owning only a small flock, will find it to their interest to get in touch with the United States Department of Agriculture when in doubt about the best methods to follow.

Visitors in Washington wishing to consult the department's poultry specialists are invited to call at their office and also to visit their experimental farm. The work in poultry feeding and breeding is conducted by the animal husbandry division and that relating to diseases by the pathological division of the bureau of animal industry.

Many bulletins are available dealing with various phases of poultry raising, any of which may be had free upon application to the division of publications, United States Department of Agriculture. In addition to the regular bulletins there are a number prepared especially for boys' and girls' clubs and for persons beginning the poultry business without much knowledge of its requirements. A list of these may be had upon application to the same division.

At the department's experimental farm at Beltsville, Md., various rations are being fed to hens to study their effect. For example, in one experiment the hen balances her own ration; in another fish meal is included; in another no wheat or wheat products are used; while cotton-seed meal replaces a part of the beef scrap in another. Comparisons are also made of the effect of the same rations on hens of the egg breeds as compared with those of the general-purpose breeds. Only simple rations of widely available feeds are used.

Hens in considerable numbers are being trap-nested, and matings made to determine the possibilities of different methods of breeding in increasing or fixing egg production. Matings to fix certain types or characters desired in the flocks also are made. No birds are retained in the flock which have a disqualification that would bar them under the rules of the American Standard of Perfection. The results being obtained indicate that it is possible to combine utility and standard breeding to a practical degree. Any of this information is available for the persons requesting it, and the department is eager to have it used widely.

Boys' and girls' poultry clubs have a wide influence in interesting the children in raising chickens, and in teaching them and their parents the best methods of handling poultry for the production of eggs and meat.

The department is giving special attention to improving the quality of market eggs with a view to overcoming losses estimated at many millions of dollars annually. These studies cover the production of eggs on the farm, and their handling from the farm to the country store. The production of infertile eggs, which are far superior in keeping qualities to fertile eggs, is being advocated.

CURE COLD IN HEALTHY FOWL

Application of Three or Four Drops of Coal Oil in Nostrils of Bird Is Effective.

A cold can be cured in a healthy fowl by an application of three or four drops of kerosene in the fowl's nostrils. Never get it in the eyes. Put enough permanganate of potash in the drinking water to color a bright pink. This is good for throat infections of all kinds and will usually prevent the spread of the trouble.

MURDER!

Synopsis.—In a New York jewelry store, Philip Severn, United States consular agent, notices a small box which attracts him. He purchases it. Later he discovers in a secret compartment a writing sleeve, a clew to a revolutionary movement in this country seeking to overthrow the Chilean government. The writing mentions a rendezvous, and Severn decides to investigate. Finding the place mentioned in the writing apparently deserted, Severn visits a saloon in the vicinity. A woman in the place is met by a man, seemingly by appointment, and Severn, his suspicions aroused, follows them. They go to the deserted meeting place, an abandoned rooming house. At the rendezvous Severn is accepted as one of the conspirators and admitted. He meets a stranger who addresses him as Harry Daly. The incident plays into Severn's hands and he accepts it. His new acquaintance is a notorious thief, "Gentleman George" Harris. Convinced, Severn hears the girl address the conspirators. She urges them to hasten the work of revolution. The girl discovers Severn listening. She accepts his explanation of his presence and asks him to meet her next day. He tells her his name is Daly. She is "Miss Conrad." Harris informs him of a scheme he has to form a revolution. He has to secure $1,000,000. The revolutionary fund, and offers to "split" with him. Severn accepts. Severn learns it was his new friend and a "Captain Alva" who had lost the box which started him on the trail. Harris tells him the woman is Marie Gessler. He arranges to meet Severn next day at Tom Costigan's saloon.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

If so, who then was "Miss Conrad"? Not Marie Gessler, certainly, under another name, for she would have returned to Washington. There was no doubt as to that, for Alva had agreed to take her direct to the depot in his own car, and would scarcely leave until she was safely on the train. Probably the other woman was a confederate, with whom she would communicate by telephone. My clearer judgment told me all this, made me fully conscious of the danger of keeping this appointment, yet never answered me from no intention to do so. Marie Gessler's eyes were frank and honest; they had looked directly into my own, pleadingly I imagined, and I retained a blind faith in her ordinary circumstances would overcome. She was involved in this criminal conspiracy—there could be no doubt as to that—but why? under what conditions? What could ever have driven so womanly a woman to such an effort of assistance? Was she blindly endeavoring to learn in this way if I was worthy of trust, and confidence? This hope would not down; it remained insistent, persistent. I would keep my word; I would go to the place designated, at the hour set; I would go armed, prepared for whatever might occur of treachery—but I would go. Perhaps here was the key to the whole mystery; and once I solved her connection with the plot, particularly if it abanished her from blame, and the necessity of exposure, I could go forward with clear conscience, and land these others where they justly belonged.

I must have covered four or five blocks immersed in such thought, almost forgetful of my surroundings, my head bent low before the rain, my feet carelessly shuffling through the water in pools on the sidewalk. I met no one, heard no sound to arouse me; all about was dark, desolate, forlorn. Then suddenly I became conscious of some unusual obstruction just ahead. At first I took it for a wrecked wagon lying against the curb, but another step forward revealed the truth—a deserted touring car, its red tail-light plastered with mud, and barely visible. I approached with a feeling of relief; it was not wrecked, no sign of accident was to be noticed. Even in that dim light I could see the machine was no common car, a sedan, its glass brilliant in spite of the rain spatters, and its paint gleaming brightly.

I stared about wondering, but could perceive nothing to account for the presence of such a car, or its apparent desertion. Up and down both streets not a figure moved; not a sound reached me but the slough of the wind, and the patter of rain. I shivered with the loneliness of it all, as curiosity led me to cross the muddy parkway to assure myself as to what this strange desertion meant.

There was no one in the car. I could look straight through the dimmed windows, against the glare of a street lamp a block away. One of the rear doors stood half open, and, tempted by it, I bent over and felt within. My hand touched some object on the floor, and I instantly straightened up with the thing gripped in my fingers. It was a long, thin-bladed dagger—an ornament rather than a weapon—with an odd, fanciful hilt. There were stains upon the polished steel; and the moment I saw it, I knew where it had attracted my attention before—as a pin in Marie Gessler's hat.

CHAPTER VII.

I seek Miss Conrad—The Threads Become Tangled.

I grasped the thing in my hand, holding it up incredulously into whatever faint light I could find. There was no question as to its identity; I could not doubt. This was the same peculiar ornament I had observed that evening in the girl's hat, or else its exact mate. I recalled the quaint shape of the miniature hilt too clearly to be mistaken. Then this car was the one in which she had departed with Gustave Alva two hours before. What had occurred in the meanwhile? Something serious evidently. The dagger on the floor would indicate a struggle, or at least a hasty departure from the vehicle.

I stood staring at it, slowly comprehending the probable meaning of those dark stains on the blade. Their nature could not be determined in so dim a light, yet when I touched them with my finger it became discolored. My God! could it be blood? Blood! was blood; then this had been a scene of tragedy, of awful crime perhaps. The discovery sickened me, but I had to go on. I wrenched open the forward door and peered fearfully within. I could not but know instantly what I saw—a dim, huddled form leaning forward across the steering wheel, one hand yet on the spokes, with head dangling helplessly, upheld only by contact with the windshield.

I knew the man was dead before I touched the cold hand; his very posture told that—and how he had died; instantly, from a stab in the back. I could not see his features, the darkness hid them, but desperation drove me to pass my hand over the concealed face; the upturned mustache, the exposed teeth, grinning ironically in death, left no doubt as to who he was—the Chilean soldier and attaché, Captain Alva. The awful horror of it paralyzed my very brain. She must have done this! That girl must have killed him! But why? for what reason? for what purpose? Could it have been in answer to insult? Had the man dared to press his advances once they were alone? and had she resisted? I would not question his insistence; yet this was not possible. The knife lay on the floor behind him. Just as plucked, blood-stained, from the wound. The girl, then, was not even riding beside him; she could not have dealt such a blow—she must have been alone in the rear seat. There in the dark, unnoticed by the man driving, she had leaned forward, and driven that sharp blade unerringly home to the heart. He had expected nothing in time to raise even an arm in self-defense. Then, dazed, frightened by her terrible deed, terrified even at the knife in her terror, she had dashed it to the floor and fled into the darkness, leaving the rear door open behind her.

That was the story; that must be the story. My mind pictured the scene in all its horror. Yet what could account for such an act? What cause could transform this woman, this smiling-faced girl, into a murderess? Her leaving that weapon behind would seem to proclaim that the deed was done in haste, on the spur of the moment; that it had not been in any way premeditated and planned. Otherwise she would have guarded against such danger of discovery. Why, that carelessness alone might ruin every hope of escape, might bring her to the electric chair—it was damning evidence.

I dare not remain there in the presence of this grisly spectacle. To be found would fasten the hideous crime upon me, while such a story as I must tell would never be believed. I did not know even who she really was, or where she might be. I cared nothing for Alva's death; horrible as it was, I was conscious of no regret, but I must not be mixed up in the affair. The only thing for me to do was to disappear, and leave the police to make their own discovery. And the knife? the weapon which had done the deed? What should I do with that?

I did not hesitate long. I would protect her from discovery if I could; at least until I was myself convinced of her guilt. There was no longer the slightest doubt in my mind but what this was her act. Everything pointed straight toward her. Yet there might be a reason, a worthy cause, and, in any case, she had done a service to the country. The world was better off with this conspirator dead; nor would I denounce the one who had taken his life. I hid the knife in a pocket of my coat, and hastened down the side street toward the nearest car line, my only desire being to escape that neighborhood as swiftly as possible.

By a quarter of three I was safely in my room at the hotel, for the first time feeling a sense of real security. Yet it was not to sleep. I did not even undress, except to remove my wet outer-garments before flinging myself on the bed. My brain wouldn't rest, and I lay there staring up at the ceiling, while my mind reviewed over and over again every incident of the night, and planned for the morning. How would the murder of Alva affect the plot I had started to overcome? Would it continue under some other leadership? Who? And the money? what would become of that? What readjustment of plans would Harris consider necessary? Once I knew his conception of the situation, I could better regulate my own action. Meanwhile the only safe course was to remain still, and profess ignorance. Then I had the engagement at 247 Le Comte street—that might reveal something of importance to help me solve the problem.

I got up, removed the dagger from my pocket, and examined it in the electric light. It was a toy weapon, yet sufficiently dangerous, for all that, and I looked at it with a sense of horror. How could a woman have ever thrust even that keen blade with one blow through to the heart? Yet the evidence was before me. Those dark stains were blood—human blood—dried now, but unmistakable in their proof of crime. I washed the steel, leaving the blade bright and polished; then wrapped it carefully, and hid it away at the very bottom of my bag, locking the latter against possible inspection by a curious maid. I felt relieved once I had the weapon out of sight.

The morning papers contained no reference to the tragedy—the body of the dead man had not been found in time. There would be noise enough when it was, no doubt, for Alva must have been widely known and ranked as of some importance. Even if his identity was never established, if no suspicion was aroused as to his position, and secret work in this country, yet the very mystery of the case would create a sensation. But perhaps he had papers on his person of value. I regretted not having searched his pockets. Then the conviction came that possibly here might be the true solution of the murder—a desire to secure some documents, the main carried.

I went down to Costigan's place on foot, not being entirely certain of the exact location. It was an ordinary corner saloon, with a stairway leading to rooms above. In the morning hours the barroom was nearly deserted, but the man at the bar, looking me over cautiously, said that "Mr. Parker" had already gone out, and had left no word as to when he would return. I was rather glad, yet I left a telephone number, with a request that he called whenever he came back. I waited impatiently for the call in my room, but none came. It dawned upon me that in all probability Harris was frantically endeavoring to find the whereabouts of Alva, as yet having no suspicion of his death. I telephoned Costigan's, but "Mr. Parker" had not returned.

I sent out for a noon edition, eagerly scanning its columns, but finding nothing. Surely the deserted car, with its grim burden, must have been discovered before this. The police must have suppressed the news to enable them to work in secret; they might have found some evidence in the dead man's pockets, or in the dark recesses of the car, by which they still hoped to capture the assassin.

I remembered eating in a basement restaurant, where I was totally unknown, and then departing for the rendezvous on Le Comte street. I approached the number given with serious misgivings. If the police were actually on the trail, some knowledge of this place might be in their possession, and I could not be too cautious.

There is no "Miss Conrad."

PUZZLE FOR LOVERS OF DOG

Just How Did Terrier Know the Correct Time, When the Clocks Had Been Advanced?

Perhaps because of his power of speech, the parrot is usually regarded as amazingly wise. But many dumb creatures often display just as remarkable intelligence.

Can a dog judge time? This is one of the subjects upon which some light is thrown in "Dogs, Birds and Others," by H. J. Massingham.

A terrier had been in the habit of jumping on his master's bed and awakening him each morning at seven o'clock. When the clocks had been advanced an hour for summer time, the man was anxious to see what the dog would do.

Next morning, as usual, the animal jumped upon the bed. The clock was at seven exactly, although really it was only six o'clock. Had the dog counted the strokes of the clock when it struck, or had he understood about the clocks being put on?

Gentle Coheredation.

"Charley, dear?" exclaimed young Mrs. Torkins, "you have often told me how fond you are of sitting under a tree and waiting for the fish to nibble."

"Yes," I have resolved to make home as happy and comfortable for you as possible. I have bought a rubber tree and some goldfish."

Beggar Woman Had Her Own Point of View Concerning "Business" She Was Engaged In.

Secretary Lawson Parry of the Charity Organization society said at a dinner in New York:

"Professional beggars are a self-righteous crew. What I mean is that they regard their trade the same as you and I regard honest work. One winter afternoon I came on a beggar woman I knew of old. She was begging in a bitter wind on a corner, and three little children in calico rags shivered at her side.

"You—Jane, I said reproachfully, 'You—begging! And those three little ones! They aren't really yours at all!'

"Well, dammitall," said the beggar woman, "I wouldn't have to beg so hard if they were really mine, for then I wouldn't be forking over a dollar a day to hire them."—Los Angeles Times.

Drawing It Too Fine.

After giving the prospective housemaid full details as to her duties, the mistress of the house was on the point of turning away when a thought struck her suddenly.

"Oh, by the way," she asked, "do you know your way to a nigger?"

"Well, ma'am," replied Mary, "I'm not sure about that, but I think I know my weight to a pound or so."

The foolish man who built his house on the sand—

He gave an example in folly which anybody can understand.

It isn't so easy, however, to sense the mistake of trying to build the body on foods which lack essential nourishment.

Here, again, is a foundation of sand which gives way when the test comes.

Many a food that tastes good lacks honesty of nourishment to equal its taste. Thus it tempts the appetite into mistakes that often are costly.

Grape-Nuts is a food which helps build bodily endurance for life's stress and storm. The full nourishment of wheat and malted barley, together with the vital mineral salts so necessary to bone structure and red blood corpuscles, with phosphates for the brain, is retained in Grape-Nuts. The long baking process by which Grape-Nuts is made gives the food a natural sweetness and an unusual ease of digestibility and assimilation.

Served with cream or milk, Grape-Nuts is fully nourishing, and whether eaten as a cereal at breakfast or lunch, or made into a pudding for dinner, Grape-Nuts has a particular delight for the appetite. Sold by grocers.

Not to be out done by Henry Hoerner's cotton now on display in this office, Henry Story last week showed us the results of his experiment in raising peanuts in this northern climate. He planted thirty hills and last week dug twenty quarts of as fine a lot of peanuts as one could wish to see. Mr. Story has also dug his second crop of potatoes from his garden. The first crop, planted early, was harvested by July 15, and the second crop planted. Mr. Story says the second crop was better than the first.—Standard Democrat.

What is believed to be the largest ear of White Dent corn grown in this section is on display in the offices of Crawford and Reeves. The ear is 12 inches long. It was raised on a farm in Newport township conducted by Herman J. Rompesky on what is known as the Reeves farm. While this variety of corn is a heavy producer and the ears grow very large, it is seldom they reach such large size north of the corn belt.—Waukegan Sun.

The Conway Construction company had an unusual experience recently when something went wrong with their concrete mixer. It was a cold morning and the hose supplying the water for the mixer seemed clogged although the workmen did not believe it was cold enough to cause ice to form in the hose. The company was working on the new pavement on the Green Bay road at Washington street. About 450 lineal feet is a day's work, but upon this occasion they were unable to put down more than 86 feet. Late in the afternoon the workmen disconnected the hose and found a live garter snake in it.

Not Likely.
Urlian had come to inform me, writes a Labrador Mission worker to Le Petit Nord, that he could not "release the spillover" for his "stomach had capsize." I felt it incumbent on me to administer castor oil, thinking that that might be sufficient punishment for what I had reason to believe was only a ruse to escape work. It was hard for me to give the oil, but harder still to have the boy look up afterwards with a cherubic smile and ask if it were the same old that Elsie gave the widow woman—YOUTH'S Companion.

India is said to be "the burning heart of Asia." That is to say, it has a genius for religion that is unsurpassed. Of the four great faiths which had their genesis in Asia, three were born in India. It is a land of 117 languages. Some of them are spoken by only a few people, but there are ten of these languages, each of which is spoken by 10,000,000 or more. Of every 100 people in the world, eighteen live in India. The latest census of India gives the population as 318,132,537.
